Hanna Succeeds Walters as President of Business Men's Association—Wilson and Urbahns Vice Presidents.

The annual meeting of the Business Men's Association was held at the library club rooms on Thursday evening last, and the first thing on the program was an excellent chicken pie supper served by the ladies of St. Paul's M. E. church, during the course of which delightful music was furnished by the High school orchestra, for which they received hearty applause. After cigars had been passed a communication from the National One Cent Postage Association, asking the local association to endorse a resolution addressed to President-elect Wilson in favor of this movement, was read by President Walters, after which P. J. Jacobs made a short talk in favor of the same and moved the recommendation be adopted. This was carried without a dissenting voice.

Dr. F. A. Walters, who had served faithfully and well as president of the Business Men's Association during the past two years, spoke of some of the work that has been accomplished, especially in the line of good roads, which are certainly up to the standard, and closed with a compliment for Dr. Wilson as chairman of the entertainment committee. The speaker suggested the name of T. H. Hanna as president for the ensuing year, and upon motion of Dr. Wilson the secretary was authorized to cast the ballot of the association for that gentleman. Mr. Hanna paid a compliment to the outgoing president for his good work. Officers elected, all by acclamation, were as follows:

President—T. H. Hanna.
First Vice Pres.—W. H. Wilson.
Second Vice Pres.—C. E. Urbahns.
Secretary—C. S Orthman.
Treasurer—J. W. Dunegan.

The principal speaker of the evening was Supt. Tobey of the Wausau schools, who talked for over an hour on the industrial school question, telling of the benefits derived through this educational channel by boys and girls who are unable to attend the regular courses in the other schools. At Wausau, he said, they have an enrollment in the High school of 564 and a total enrollment in the public schools of 3,400, the cost of running the schools being $97,000, or about three times as much as in Stevens Point. When the industrial school was opened there, it met with considerable opposition from both parents and manufacturers, but the sentiment is now different, all being heartily in favor of the law. The boys are taught trades, especially in the mechanical line, and the girls how to cook, sew and keep house, and all take up different studies. The school opened with an attendance of 90 girls and 52 boys, and now the evening school has 150 girls and 75 boys. At first one teacher was engaged and now they have three. The cost of maintaining this school is $4,000 per annum, one-half of which is paid back by the state, and the taxpayers of Stevens Point must pay their proportion of the $2,000.

Mr. Tobey said he deplored the fact that Wisconsin stands 28th among the 48 states of the Union in educational efficiency, especially as regards to illiteracy among its native born citizens. Illinois, he stated, is endeavoring to amend its laws so that the compulsory educational law will be raised from 14 to 16 years. The speaker strongly advocated the opening of an industrial school in Stevens Point and preparations to do this at the opening of the coming school year will no doubt soon be started.

Others who asked questions or took part in the discussion that followed at the close of Mr. Tobey's address were Prof. Culver, F. J. Blood, L. R. Anderson, Supt. Roberts, E. McGlachlin, M. E. Bruce, W. H. Coye, Rev. Stemen, Rev. Montague, Pres. Sims, Prof. Collins, Prof. Bowman and others, and at the close Supt. Tobey was tendered a vote of thanks and made an honorary member of the local association.

SAVES THREE MILLIONS

States Have Been Taxed That Amount to Help the Wealthy Ones Residing at National Capitol.

[Special Correspondence to The Gazette.] Washington, Feb. 15th.—Three million dollars is to be the saving to the people of the country as the result of the fact that Congressman Ben Johnson of Kentucky is chairman of the House committee on the District of Columbia. He discovered that the people in the states are paying one-half of the taxes for those who reside in the District of Columbia and, until he began to make a fight in Congress, they did not know it. Even some of the members of Congress did not know it.

The practice of the government standing one-half of the taxes for residents of the District of Columbia is an old one. It has been going on for years. Custom is a hard thing to break down. But there is really no more reason why the people of the states should bear half of the expense of maintaining the District of Columbia than there is why they should pay half of the taxes of the residents of the capitals of states. The old policy of the government to stand one-half of the taxes makes Washington a fine place for tax dodging millionaires to build their palaces. It might only be expected that when Mr. Johnson began his fight pressure would be brought to bear on him to force him to abandon it. It was. The great newspapers of Washington flayed him and ridiculed him; the Senate set itself up against him, he was opposed on the floor of the House, and he had to fight, and fight hard, for every inch of headway he made.

But Mr. Johnson took the attitude that he was sent to Congress to serve the best interests of all the people and not for the purpose of perpetuating soft snaps for the wealthy of the District of Columbia. Mr. Johnson, after a hard fight, succeeded in striking more than three millions of dollars out of the last appropriation bill for the District of Columbia.

"The people back in the states are taxed to carry on their local city, county and state governments; and, in addition, are taxed to pay one-half of all the municipal expenses of the city of Washington," declared Mr. Johnson. "Congress quarrels and fights within itself over the question as to whether one or two battleships shall be built, and without batting an eye or asking a question, votes the price of a dreadnaught to Washington each Congress. Widows of the old soldiers are compelled to fight and scrambie for an eight dollar or a twelve dollar a month pension, but the widow of a Washington policeman is paid a pension of fifty dollars a month and no questions asked, while the eight dollar pensioned widow back in the states is taxed to help pay it. The same may be said of the old soldier himself.

"The county school teacher bears her part of a tax burden in order to pay the school teacher $1,800 for teaching 280 hours in the schools of Washington. The school child back in the states bears its proportion of tax at home for school books, and then pays a tax to buy school books for the child of the millionaire who lives in Washington. The farmer on the rural route in the states must carry a lantern on his road or travel in the dark while he pays his proportion of the cost to put electric lights on the rural routes which lead out of the city of Washington to the limits of the seventy square miles which constitute the District of Columbia.

"The school child back in the states is given desk room in its humble school at a cost of a dollar or two while that child bears its proportion of tax which is imposed upon the American people to give desk room costing $1,210 for each child which has entered the school age during the last five years in the city of Washington."

Electoral College Meets.

A dispatch from Washington, dated last Wednesday, says that although the result of the presidential election was known early in the evening of November 5, it was not until today, when the Senate and House met in joint session, that Woodrow Wilson and Thomas R. Marshall were officially declared to be elected president and vice president, respectively, for four years, beginning March 4, 1913.

The meeting of the electoral college, as the joint session of the senators and representatives is termed, attracted a large gathering to the hall of the house of representatives. Senator Gallinger, president pro tempore of the senate, presided. As the ballots of the electors were opened they were turned over to the four tellers, two of whom represented the senate and the other two the house.

When the total vote was cast Senator Gallinger in a clear voice announced that of the total electoral vote of 531, of which a majority was 266, Woodrow Wilson, for president, and Thomas R. Marshall, for vice president, had each received 435, while 88 votes were cast for Roosevelt and Johnson and 8 votes for William H. Taft.

Played the Devil With Him.

Among the first protests against the parcel post to arrive in Washington came from F. T. Deason, a star route mail carrier of Irvington, Ga. He transmits the following complaint through Congressman Hardwick of Georgia:

"I seat myself with pen in hand to write you a few lines to let you know that you have played the devil with me. I am a star route mail carrier from McIntyre to Irvington and took the contract to carry the mail three times a day, a distance of three and one half miles, for $319 a year. At that time the express company was doing a pretty good business and I got ten cents for each express and ten cents and a drink for every jug.

"You fixed the law so I couldn't carry the jug, and now you have fixed up a thing called the 'possum post' and the express companies don't handle any more small packages, nor do I handle any more dimes.

"When I made this contract I could carry the mail in a road cart and a Texas pony and haul the express on the side, now the express has shrunk and this 'possum post' business has swelled so I have to get a mule and wagon."

Fail Not to Register.

In Stevens Point, as well as in other cities of this class, the board of registry will hold two meetings before election, the first one on Monday and Tuesday, March 10th and 11th, and the second one on Tuesday, March 25th, and you must appear in person and have your name registered, even though you have resided in the city and ward all your life. Otherwise, it will be necessary for you to swear in your vote on election day. The legislature of 1911, in its wisdom (?) passed a new law, the substance of which is as follows: "At the meetings of the board of inspectors, held immediately preceding the April election for the year 1913, in cities of the second, third and fourth class, and in villages and towns in which registry is required, such inspectors shall make a new registry of electors for such election, and no previous registry or registry list shall be copied or used, in whole or in part, in making the same, and no person's name shall be placed upon such registry unless the elector appears in person before the inspectors and requests that his name be registered."

The law is plain and specific: you must go before the board in person, no matter how many times you have voted in your ward in the past, as no names can be copied by the board of registry from poll lists used in the past. Therefore, remember the above dates.

Causes of Fires.

One hundred seventy-five "match" fires, cusing property loss of $75,475.00, is the Wisconsin record for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1912. Of these fires 91 were caused by children playing with matches, and 84 were due to the use of "parlor matches" and general careless use of matches. Quite a number of children also lost their lives in these fires.

Competent authorities estimate that for the United States a property loss of $15,000,000 and a loss of 500 lives is the average annual match toll. Some of these fires are due wholly to the use of the so-called "parlor match" or "strike anywhere match," the others to the careless use of matches, even of the safety variety.

The remedy in the one case is simple, viz., prohibit by state law the manufacture and sale of "parlor matches" and all other "strike anywhere matches." This will compel the use of the "safety match" or double dip match, of which the first dip is non-ignitable on an abrasive surface.

Carelessness is harder to prevent, and we can only urge the observance of a few simple rules:

1. Children under ten years of age should not have access to matches nor be permitted to play with them.
2. Covered earthen or metal receptacles for matches should be placed in each room on the wall, five and one-half feet above the floor, with a like receptacle for burnt matches.
3. Avoid leaving matches on mantels, shelves, tables or in drawers, or carrying them in pockets except in a metal case.
4. Do not use lighted matches to look for things in closets or dark rooms, nor to find gas leaks, nor in oil rooms.
5. Never throw away a match just used until it is completely out and no trace of glowing coal is left.
6. Never throw a match just used into the wood box, a cellar way or sidewalk area, waste box or basket, onto the floor, or anywhere else where rubbish may be set on fire.
7. To protect yourself, your family and your property use "safety matches" ONLY.

Report of the Committee.

The following report of a committee appointed at the recent convention of county superintendents at Madison, explains itself and is of interest to the public as well as teachers and others engaged in educational work:

We, your committee, appointed to report upon the Preliminary Report of the Results of Field Study Reported to the State Board of Public Affairs by the Training School for Public Service, after careful examination of this preliminary report and of information gathered from exact conversation with those superintendents whose superintendency districts were investigated, do report upon the Preliminary Report in general but more particualrly upon the county superintendency phase, as follows:

1. The school men of Wisconsin welcome at any time a thorough and comprehensive investigation of the state of affairs in their public schools directed toward raising the efficiency of said schools.

2. Wisconsin is well aware of the many educational problems of a serious and perplexing nature. These problems have not been ignored but have been frankly faced, intelligently studied and solutions proposed by our own people. The school system is constantly changing because social conditions are changing, hence we shall always have educational problems

3. Investigation of school problems, to be of value, we feel, be conducted by men of national reputation as educators, men of balance and judgment and experience, who would give to us a comprehensive and properly balanced judgment of our educational system.

4. It should be borne in mind that aside from the head of the investigating committee and his assistant statistician who are expert accountants, the members of this committee are men who are young in the business of education, and are novices in this sort of investigation, and are students, if we are properly informed, in the Bureau of Research on their first piece of practice work. The work of this committee shows their unfamiliarity with country schools and country school conditions.

5. This work of investigation was carried on in fewer than one-half of the counties of the state. In a number of the counties visited visits were extremely brief, sometimes scarcely more than the period between trains. We submit to fair-minded people that an attempt to attach any serious weight to the results of such investigation is to over dignify it.

a. The most thorough investigation made was in relation to financial affairs, particularly in three centers in the north, namely, in the regions where the township system was just going out of exisence through a change in the law.

b. In a majority of cases where the reader of this report would be led to believe that deductions had been drawn from numerous and typical cases the instances cited in the report were not deductions whatsoever, but extreme instances of their kind.

6. We are not questioning the motives of the State Board of Public Affairs, nor the Bureau of Municipal Research. We merely speak with respect to the efficiency of the work done and the conditions under which it was done and express our judgment of its value.

7. We regard it as deplorable from the point of view of public welfare and the fair name of our state that the results of this investigation were not first given to the legislature and judiciously handled by that body of representative citizens, but on the contrary it was spread broadcast not only in the state of Wisconsin but over the country at large long before the legislature met. Newspapers and educational journals all over the United States have as a result pictured a sorry condition of Wisconsin schools which we feel does not exist.

Hundreds Saved From Rabies.

A total of 288 persons threatened with rabies have been given the Pasteur treatment for the prevention of hydrophobia at the University of Wisconsin hygienic laboratory during the last two and a half years. Five of these were caused from bites from human beings, one from a pet coyote, and the rest from dogs.

The average cost of the Pasteur treatment at private institutions is $100, and as a charge of only $25 is made at the state hygienic laboratory, a sum which barely pays for the expense of treatment, each patient treated was saved $75. This amounts to a total saving of $21,600 to the 288 persons treated.

Of the 49 examinations for rabies made during the six months ending January 1, 1913, 32 positive reactions were returned. The fallacy of the old belief that mad dogs are more common in July and August than in other months is shown by the fact that there were nearly twice as many examinations for rabies made by the laboratory in September as in July.

Dr. Hartman Says:

Write to Peruna Testimonials If You Want to Know the Truth.

The following letter was received by Dr. Hartman through his regular correspondence:

"I notice the testimonial of Mrs. Alice Bogle, which you give in your last article. If I should write her do you suppose she would give me further particulars? I have heard it said many times that such testimonials are fakes; that they are either absolutely fictitious or else the people have been hired to write them. I have been inclined to write you a great many times but these stories about patent medicine advertisements have discouraged me from doing so. I am afflicted with catarrh and should like very much to find a remedy such as your article describes."

To the above letter Dr. Hartman made the following reply:

My dear Madam:—I do not wonder that you are confused and have lost all faith in advertised remedies. There has been so much said against them, so much controversy concerning them, I am not surprised that some people have lost confidence in them.

I wish you would write Mrs. Bogle, as one woman to another. I wish you would ask her whether she has been hired to write such a testimonial, whether her testimonial represents the truth.

I hope you will remember that she is a housewife, like yourself, that she has something to do besides write letters, that she is a woman of moderate means and cannot afford to write these letters and pay her own postage. I hope you will enclose stamp so she can answer you without loss to herself. Mrs. Bogle is a very estimable lady and no doubt you will both profit by being acquainted with each other.

Should you conclude to try Peruna for your catarrh I would be very glad to hear of the result. I can assure you that no use will be made of your letter, except by your written consent. Mrs. Bogle very kindly consented to have me use her letter, which is my reason for doing so, and you will be treated exactly as she has been.

KRISS KRINGLE PACKS.

Something Quite Novel to Send Your Friends.

Two clever young New York women who have built up a delightful and lucrative business through the contriving of artistic gift boxes made up especially for the individual recipient have introduced a novel Christmas package this year.

It is called the "Kriss Kringle pack." It is a stout khaki pouch, finished with tan leather straps and fastened with a small padlock. The pack is filled with gifts chosen with special reference to the age and tastes of the person—small boy or girl, invalid or healthy grownup—to whom it is to go.

The gifts are daintily wrapped and fastened with Christmas seals, and to each is attached a bit of merry verse.

A few days before Christmas the key to the pack is mailed to the recipient. It goes attached to a Christmas tag which announces in verse that the key will unlock a mysterious pack to be delivered by Kriss Kringle on Christmas morning.

On the outside of the pack is a gay presentation card in colors showing Kriss himself and having space for the name and address of the recipient. The toys, dainty gifts and imported novelties with which the packs are filled are things which for the most part cannot be found anywhere else. Many of them are made by the young women themselves

Present For the Men.

Choosing Christmas gifts for men is so difficult that women this year will welcome a novelty for the necktie. This is in the form of a stout gold pin with a gold knob at the end. The point is supplied with rivets that screw into a second knob when in place. This is attached to the pin proper by a small gold chain.

This useful contrivance is to hold down the soft collars of negligee shirts. When adjusted nothing shows but the gold knobs in the lower corner of the collar, the pin and chain are hidden by the tie.

For a more costly individual gift a pearl or colored stone is substituted for the gold knob.

This Is How She'll Look.

Woman's dress is to take on an aspect of militancy for 1913, according to the edict of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Makers' association, which met in convention recently. Skirts are to be perfectly straight, looking like an envelope. Jackets are to be the same. Narrow skirts will prevail, with a slash, because women wearing narrow skirts unslashed are in constant danger from falls.

Waistcoats will be worn with nearly all of the spring suits. They will be made of contrasting material.

The spring coats are to be made of stripes and checks mostly. There are few plain materials in the new coats.

Lessons in Spending.

Viscountess Esher, an energetic Englishwoman, has started "spending" classes, in which women will be taught to keep account of the money which passes through their hands. As women are proverbially poor accountants, it will be a wise plan to teach them how to fill in a check, to keep a petty cash-book and to have general intelligence in keeping their household accounts and dressmaker allowances out of the generally hopeless muddle.

THE LATEST PERIODICAL

Publication Founded by Jeff Davis Will Represent 1,000,000 of the Fraternity.

The International Hobo Review, a monthly publication for the purpose of spreading the propaganda of Hoboism, is to be one of the first steps to be taken by the new president of the International Brotherhood Welfare association, Jeff Davis, a Chicago hobo.

This and many other movements to better the condition of the "under dog" have been started by the new chief of the unemployed, who was elected recently by the vote of the organization which was founded by James Eads How, the millionaire hobo of St. Louis.

Such men as Jack London, James Eads How, James Seymour, the hobo poet; Walter Maillard and Robert Hunter will contribute to the new official organ of the "gentlemen of the road."

The annual convention of the itinerant workers, who number about 1,000,000 in the United States, was held in New Orleans January 28 to February 2. More than 1,000 men went there to attend the gathering, and one of the conditions upon their being there is that they "hobo" their way, which, in ordinary vernacular, means they must not pay a cent to the railroads for transportation. The call for the meeting was sent forth in a pretentious document stating the purpose of the convention.

"I am proud of the honor which has been conferred upon me," said Jeff Davis in a recent interview.

Jeff Davis, whose father was a first cousin of the president of the Confederacy during the Civil war, expressed himself as hopeful for the future of the hobo.

"Persons nowadays," he said, "frequently confuse the term hobo with those of tramp and bum. There is much difference. The hobo is the one who wants work and cannot get it, while the tramp does not want employment.

"In the first place," he said, "we intend to demand more stringent laws against child labor. There are, at present, some 2,000,000 children working in the country. Were these not permitted to work it would mean just that many more positions open to men who really need the work.

"Next, we intend to demand of congress a national employment agency, in order to assist men in obtaining employment. As it is now, the unemployed are preyed upon by unscrupulous and dishonest agents, who rob the men. With Uncle Sam helping thousands of men could get work.

"Then we intend to petition congress to provide transportation, free of charge, to those unemployed who seek work in another part of the country. This would permit the unemployed to go where work awaits them.

"In this way thousands of men would find employment, whereas, where not employed they would be a burden upon the community. They are willing, yes, even anxious to work."

Social Washington in 1915.

From the letter of a distinguished European visiting Washington in August, 1915:

"I requested C. to procure for me, if possible, the privilege of paying my respects to the president. He looked at me in frank amazement and raised both hands and eyebrows. Evidently he did not trust himself to speak on the subject, but from the naval attache I learned in confidence that the embassy has been unable to adjust itself to the informality prevailing at the White House since March 4, 1913. It was suggested that if I wished to see the president I should merely drop around any time and ring the door bell.

"In the morning, my informant said, I might be certain of catching Mr. Wilson in the back yard sawing cord wood into stove lengths, and any evening would be likely to find him at home in his slippers with the evening paper.

"This may astonish you, but permit me to assure you that Washington has harmonized itself completely with ideas of democratic simplicity which I am told are attributed to an early president named Jefferson. If they would strike you with their oddity they also would hold you by their charm.

"Calling on Mr. Marshall, the vice president, I discovered him in his cabbage field, where he spoke of the considerable devastation done by cut worms. He was kindly and had me enter the house with him, where we spent a half hour pleasantly looking over the family album and at various views of Niagara Falls.

"At the residence of Secretary of State Bryan last night I was fortunate to be one at a porch party. Mr. Bryan is a courteous host and was graceful passing the lemonade and pound cake. My only regret was that we were deprived of his atractive conversation for a full hour. He was called to the gate by a visitor and spent the time talking over the fence earnestly. On returning he apologized, but said that Earl Haldane, the British ambassador, had a pressing matter to take up with him, and its importance must excuse his incivility.

"I am looking forward with the utmost pleasure to a lawn party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Champ Clark. Mr. Clark is moderator of the house of burgesses or the lower assembly, and I am informed that he is quite as Jeffersonian as the delightful Mr. Bryan. When you come over be at no pains with your luggage. A handbag will carry all you need."—Chicago Tribune.

International Special Molasses Feed

AN OPEN LETTER TO DAIRYMEN

What is the cheapest feed you can buy this season? That is the question that is interesting every dairyman right now.

Corn promises to be cheap and oats are selling at very low prices. Ground corn and oats will make you a cheap feed as far as cost per ton is concerned.

If you could buy a feed for mixing with ground corn and oats that would cost you about the same as corn and oats and that would increase your milk production at least $30 per month on each twenty head of cows, you would increase your profits $360.00 a year if milking twenty cows per month. If milking forty cows you would increase your profits $720.00 per year.

Hundreds of dairymen are using International Special Molasses Feed mixed in equal parts by weight with corn and oats and are reporting to us that their cows have increased from one to three quarts per day in their milk production. International Special Molasses Feed is far superior to ordinary mill feeds as a milk producer and conditioner.

Just figure out what an increase of 1½ quarts per day on each cow means for YOU. It means 840 gallons more per month from a herd of twenty cows. It means twelve gallons more per month from each cow. In order to get this result all you need to do is feed one-half International Special Molasses Feed and one-half corn and oats in the place of straight corn and oats. The increased milk production thus obtained makes the International Special Molasses Feed worth at least $25.00 more per ton than ground corn and oats.

Latest State bulletins give the following reports on their analysis of International Special Molasses Feed: State of Pennsylvania, protein 14.69; fat 5.74. State of New Jersey, protein 15.92; fat 5.02. State of New York, protein 15.19; fat 5.58. This compares with an average analysis of less than 10% protein for ground corn and oats.

For each ton of International Special Molasses Feed that you will buy and use along with ground corn and oats you will make an extra profit of $20.00 over and above all extra cost.

We sell and recommend INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL MOLASSES FEED. We are headquarters for everything in our line.

MADERO RESIGNS AS PRESIDENT OF MEXICAN REPUBLIC

Francisco De La Barra to Become Provisional Executive —Most of Cabinet Quit.

ANARCHY RULES IN CAPITAL

Rebels Capture Puebla, While Mexico City Is Battered Into Ruins by Artillery Fire and Heavy Machine Guns of Diaz' Rebels.

Mexico City, Feb. 15.—President Madero and most all members of his cabinet have resigned their offices, and Francisco De La Barra, former provisional president following the downfall of President Diaz, will again be proclaimed provisional president.

These resignations came after six days of desperate fighting between federal troops and rebel forces under Felix Diaz, a nephew of the former president.

The fighting Friday was resumed earlier than on any preceding morning of the six days' battle in the streets.

Fighting Is Desperate.

It was more desperate and more uncertain. The federals, who had tried at dusk of Thursday evening to charge down Balderas street and take the arsenal by storm, but who had been repulsed with the loss of a hundred men, brazenly made a like attempt Friday morning.

Diaz's field gun at the street end and his machine guns on the building roofs, manned by the best marksmen in the country, simply tore the cavalry line of Madero into shreds. From the windows of the Mexican Herald building one could see the brave symmetric charging ranks disrupted. It was like the serried fall of the keys of a player piano—only the human keys did not come up again. They fell floundering under their dying horses. A pitiful few got back under cover of the federal guns. There were probably 2,000 left dead in the street.

The government forces dynamited four solid blocks of the finest houses and finest commercial buildings between the arsenal and the national palace, to give free play to the Madero gunfire.

Mutiny Ousts Madero.

At one time Diaz advanced a third of the distance between the arsenal and the palace. There was a desperate close range encounter and the rebels retired to their shelter.

When the news of Madero's resignation was flashed across the stricken city all the people were astonished. His position had seemed to be as strong as that of Diaz.

But there had been a desperate and significant mutiny in his ranks. A detachment of the Twentieth infantry, stationed between the two strongholds, turned on its officers, killed ten of them and then made a dash for the Diaz lines, throwing away their guns as a sign to the rebels that they were friendly. The mutineers were intercepted by loyal cavalry and forty of them taken as prisoners to the palace.

Another American woman was added to the list of dead. She was Mrs. Greenfield, the mother of Harry Greenfield, an employe of the Mexican Light & Power company. She was killed by a shell while attempting to cross Victoria street.

Thousands Flee City.

The people fled by thousands to the districts outside the city proper—beyond the range of guns. They remained as long as there was even a chance of security, but the spreading fighting lines made safety precarious in every populated section.

In the streets could be seen, during the lulls of firing, steady processions of men, women and children, some bearing mattresses and tents; some carrying the sick upon their shoulders.

Food continues to increase in price and scarcity. The menace of pestilence from the dead bodies of men and horses grows. A burning sun beats upon the bodies. The conditions are indescribable.

The city of Puebla, capital of the province of Puebla, was captured and is in complete control of Diaz's friends. This is the most beautiful city of Mexico, and one of the largest. De La Llave and Aguilar are holding it in the name of the rebel chieftain.

Ambassador Wilson is practically now the central and controlling figure in the movement of foreigners against further destruction of life and property. To him Madero sent a message asking that the embassy, which houses scores of refugees, be removed to some other part of the city, so that cannon could be placed at his doors to bombard the arsenal. Wilson refused. He went on housing the Americans and other foreign refugees in his building and in apartments surrounding it. He insisted that the embassy by its very name constitutes a neutral zone.

To him Diaz sent an appeal later asking recognition as a belligerent.

"I am in control of the city," the rebel leader said. Mr. Wilson declined to recognize the plea.

News Brings Relief.

Washington, Feb 15.—The news of Francisco I. Madero's voluntary relinquishment of the presidency of Mexico brought relief to official circles in Washington, in which the situation during the last five days had been growing more tense hourly.

The annnouncement, coming at the close of a day which had been steadily turning against President Madero, was not surprising. It served instantly to clear the horizon of the storm clouds which came nearer as the prospect of armed interference on the part of the United States seemed inevitable.

Ready for Exigencies.

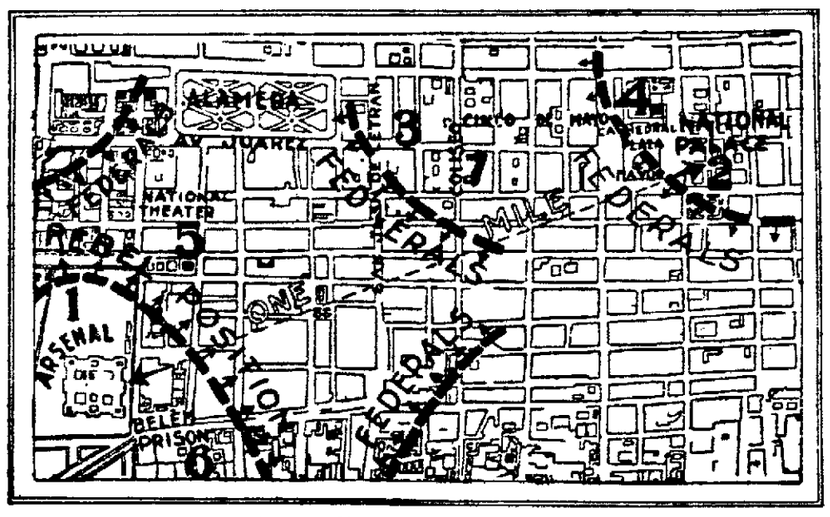
State department officials, since the opening of the fight in the plaza before the Mexican national palace last Sunday, have waited eagerly for official and unofficial advices from the scene of the conflict and the government was fully prepared to meet any situation which might arise.

As a result of the co-operation of the navy and war departments, their combined forces already were in readiness for Mexican service.

Coincident with the receipt of the news of Madero's abdication, a wireless message was flashed to the navy department here announcing the arrival in the Pacific Mexican port of Mazatlan of the cruiser Colorado, the first of the six American warships to reach its destination off the shores of the revolution-torn republic.

Five other warships are well on their way toward Mexican ports, and acting Secretary Winthrop said that in all probability they would continue to their destinations.

MAP OF CITY OF MEXICO SHO WING DISTRICT UNDER FIRE.



Key to Numbers in the Map.

1—Arsenal, the rebel position from which Diaz bombarded the city in the direction of the palace with shell and shrapnel.

2—The national palace, Madero's quarters, near which a number of rebel shells exploded.

3—Vicinity of Cinco Mayo and San Juan de Litran streets, where a federal battery drew Diaz's fire with the result that the Mutual Life building was badly damaged by shells and the British legation and other buildings were struck by shells aimed at Madero's artillerymen.

4—Cathedral, high building from towers of which federals fired on rebel position a mile off.

5—National theater, from roof of which federal artillery bombarded Diaz's position.

6—Belem prison, from which rebels released from 3,000 to 5,000 criminals, some of whom were pressed into service by Diaz.

7—Porter's hotel, where many Americans collected.

29 FACE PRISON AS TRUST CHIEFS

Jury Finds Cash Register Men Broke Criminal Law.

GUILTY ON THREE COUNTS

President of National Company and His Colleagues Plan to Appeal From Verdict—Trial Lasts Fifty Days.

Cincinnati, Feb. 15.—John H. Patterson, president of the National Cash Register company, and 28 other officials and managers of the concern were found guilty on all three counts in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law by a jury in Judge Hollister's United States district court here.

Each of the three counts carried a maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and a sentence in a common jail of not more than twelve months, thus bringing the maximum sentence for each man up to $15,000 fine and thirty-six months in jail.

That the cases will be appealed was indicated. Attorneys for the defense attempted to make a motion previous to the dismissal of the jury, but Judge Hollister assured them that any motions could be made later.

After thanking the members of the jury and informing them that in case they ever were called to jury duty again in this court they would be excused on request, Judge Howard Hollister dismissed the jury and adjourned court. He also notified the attorneys for the defense that any action they desired to take that was just would be allowed to come before the court at the proper time.

The jury deliberated almost ten hours.

President Patterson, when asked for a statement, said:

"In view of the civil litigation against the National company, I desire not to make a statement at this time."

The indictments were returned February 22, 1913, after special agents of the government had put in many days in the search for evidence.

The trial began November 19, and occupied about fifty actual trial days.

The total expense to the cash register company, including loss of time, is estimated at little less than $500,000. President Patterson and all other defendants with one exception were in court every day. The government expense has been estimated at about half as much as that of the company.

The indictments named thirty men, but Edgar Parks of New York was dismissed recently by Judge Hollister on the representation that he was in no way connected with the company in the last three years, the time named in the indictments.

"STONE TRUST" IS ATTACKED.

Wickersham Takes Steps to Have Combine Dissolved.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 14.—Sensational charges are contained in a civil anti-trust suit for the dissolution of the Cleveland Stone company and its subsidiaries, filed here on Wednesday by order of Attorney General Wickersham.

To acquire a monopoly in the building, paving, curbing and grindstone business the "stone trust" is charged with influencing architects "by a money consideration or by conferring favors" to specify its stone in their building plans; maintaining a separate organization of its subsidiaries to enable them to appear as competitors in bidding for contracts; fixing prices of building, paving and curbing stones in the central states, and controlling the price of grindstones throughout the United States by agreements with jobbers and rebating.

The Cleveland Stone company, its subsidiaries and their officers and directors are made defendants by the government's petition in equity.

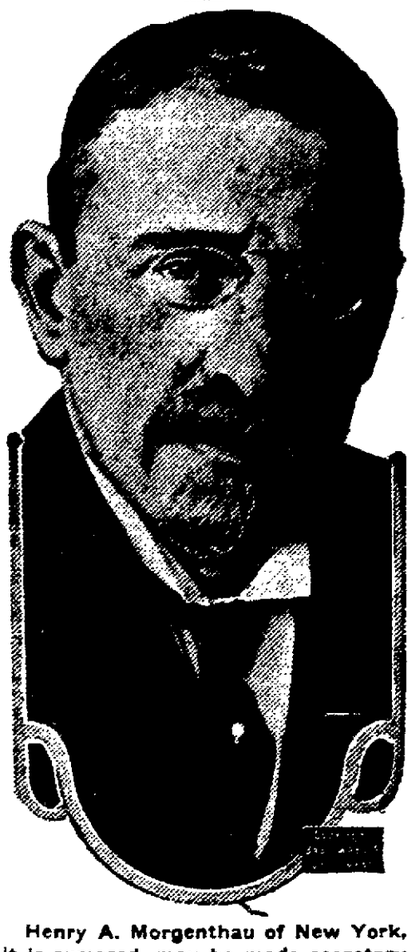
SENATE CANDIDATE IS TAKEN

Col. Edwards Arrested, Charged With Bribing West Virginia Delegate.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 15.—Col. William Seymour Edwards, candidate for United States senator, was arrested Thursday on a warrant charged with bribing Delegate John M. Smith of Tyler county. The warrant was issued at the instance of Delegate S. U. G. Rhodes, one of the five men arrested Tuesday. Edwards furnished bond.

Intense excitement was caused in the house when Rev. Thomas J. Smith of West Union, speaking on a question of personal privilege, declared that Delegate Rhodes and another man had thrust $500 in his pocket in a room in a Charleston hotel, after, he declared, Rhodes and the other man had offered him $2,000 if he would vote for Col. W. S. Edwards for United States senator.

HENRY A. MORGENTHAU.



Henry A. Morgenthau of New York, it is rumored, may be made secretary of the treasury in Woodrow Wilson's cabinet.

SEIZE FIVE LEGISLATORS ON CHARGE OF BRIBERY

West Virginia Officials Arrest Men Said to Have Accepted Money in Senatorial Fight.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 13.—Charged with having accepted bribe money alleged to have been paid over by managers of William Seymour Edwards, one of the leading candidates for United States senator, Representatives U. S. G. Rhodes, Mingo county; Dr. R. F. Asbury, Putman county; David E. Hill, Mason county; Rath Duff, Jackson county, and Senator B. A. Smith were placed under arrest Tuesday by Sheriff Ponner Hill in a hotel here in the presence of the public prosecutor, Thomas C. Townsend.

It is stated the money, which had been marked, was found on the men. It is understood that Rhodes alone was found to have $15,000 on his person. The other amounts are said to range from $3,500 to $10,000 each.

Rhodes had nominated Mann when the race started, but later went over to Edwards, in answer to the "demands of the folks back home," as he put it.

The accused men waived a preliminary hearing before Squire C. W. Dering, and were held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond. All the men furnished bond.

YELLS GREET SUFFRAGISTS

"Army" Reaches Princeton and Students Give Noisy Welcome.

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 15.—The staccato yell of Princeton university, with the appendage "Votes for women! Votes for women! Votes for women!" greeted the "army" of suffragettes which is marching to Washington when it arrived Thursday night.

The women, 13 strong, had covered 27 miles in eight hours of active walking, and several of them were on the point of exhaustion when the lights of the university town twinkled a welcome. "General" Rosalie Jones, commander of the expedition, declared that for real hardships the walk exceeded anything she had experienced.

"Corporal" Martha Klatschen, who is less than five feet tall, had to be supported during the last four miles of the march. She staggered into the village an hour after the arrival of the vanguard, pluckily refusing offers of a lift from passing automobiles.

ETHEL ROOSEVELT ENGAGED

Will Marry Dr. Richard Derby of New York City.

New York, Feb. 15.—Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt on Thursday made known to their relatives and intimate friends the engagement of their second daughter, Miss Ethel Carow Roosevelt to Dr. Richard Derby, a son of the late Dr. Richard R. Denby of this city. Formal announcement of the engagement is to be made within a few days.

Two Battleship Plan Wins.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The friends of the navy in the house won their initial victory on Tuesday when the committee on naval affairs by a vote of 14 to 7 decided to recommend two new battleships in the naval bill.

In addition to the authorization for two new battleships to cost $15,000,000 each, the naval committee will include in its bill provision for the construction of six destroyers, four submarines, one supply ship and one transport.

TRIBUTE TO SCOTT

ST. PAUL'S IN LONDON CROWDED BY THOSE PAYING RESPECT TO DEAD EXPLORERS.

THOUSANDS TURNED AWAY

King George and Many Other Notables Attend Services—Military Band Plays Dead March With Organ Accompaniment.

London, Feb. 17.—The English nation bowed its head in tribute to Capt. Robert F. Scott and his comrades in St. Paul's cathedral Friday. The imperial character of the ceremony was symbolized by the presence of the king beneath the center of the great dome in the midst of his grieving subjects. The service itself was rich, melodious and noble and the sorrowful demeanor of the people was deeply affecting.

State, army, navy, famous scientific bodies, civic life in all its features, colonial governments and diplomatic corps, church and chapel and the unclassified in the community all were represented within the spacious but crowded cathedral, and all entered with poignant emotion into every phase of the service.

The king was surrounded by a brilliantly uniformed staff.

Only a few seats had been reserved for royalty and long before time for singing of the first hymn, "Rock of Ages," the police began regretfully to turn away thousands who could not even get within view of the doors of the cathedral.

The service included the playing of the dead march from "Saul," in which the great cathedral organ was accompanied by a military band, and concluded with the hymn "Jesus Lover of My Soul." In the closing collects the names of the five dead explorers were included.

The whole service was most impressive. Vast crowds stood uncovered outside the cathedral. A great number of British bluejackets was present, both inside and outside the building.

Similar memorial services were held at Portsmouth, Devonport, Chatham and other naval centers, and in many churches throughout the kingdom. The union jack flew at full mast everywhere.

BATHTUB DEFENDANTS GUILTY

Charged With Violation of the Sherman Law—11 Individuals and 11 Companies Involved.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17.—All defendants in the bathtub trust case were found guilty by the jury in the United States district court here Friday.

The charge was violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, in that through an agreement between a majority of the manufacturers of bathtubs and nearly all of the four hundred jobbers, they absolutely fixed prices in all parts of the country. They are liable to a penalty of $5,000 fine or one year in jail, or both.

Among the defendants are a number of the most prominent men of Pittsburg, Louisville, Baltimore, New York and Chicago. In their behalf Attorney Henry Hodman attempted to move the jury by picturing the disgrace that would be brought upon their families by their conviction, while the government counsel confined themselves strictly to facts.

There are eleven individual defendants and eleven companies. The individuals are: Herman L. Hoelscher, Chicago; J. F. Duryea, New York; Lloyd G. McCrum, New York; H. T. Gates, New York; A. Borden, Salem, O.; Theodore Ahrens, Louisville, Ky.; P. J. Torrens, Pittsburg; E. L. Dawes, Pittsburg; T. R. Barnes, Mansfield, O.; A. Weiskittel, Baltimore; J. E. Wright, Wheeling, W. Va.

HONOR "UNCLE JOE" CANNON

President Taft and Other Notables Attend Banquet Given to the Veteran Ex-Speaker.

Washington, Feb. 17.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon of Illinois, former speaker of the house, was the guest of honor at a big farewell banquet Saturday night, given by members of the senate and house and others in public life. After nearly forty years of service in the house, Mr. Cannon goes out in March.

President Taft attended the banquet, and delivered a speech. Other men high in public life spoke also, and a feature of the evening was a "stunt" by the newspaper correspondents who have "covered" the veteran member from Illinois for years.

Police Take Auto Bandit Crew.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 17.—Their faces singed with powder and their uniforms perforated by revolver bullets, two policemen managed to arrest three members of a band of five alleged automobile bandits Friday.

WISCONSIN BREVITIES

Kilbourn.—Edward Morrow, twenty-two years old, and Charles Kaiser, twenty-five years old, were arrested here charged with murderous assault upon William Struck, a saloon keeper. Both were released on $1,000 bail. It is alleged that the assault was committed after Struck had thrown Morrow from his saloon. Kaiser, a former employe, and Morrow returned to the place, the police allege, and attacked Struck with a crowbar. Morrow sustained a broken jaw and had three teeth knocked out, besides suffering other injuries. His condition is serious.

FOR COUNTY JUDGE.

To the Voters of Portage County:
Gentlemen:—I am a candidate for the office of county judge at the coming spring election in April. I respectfully ask for your consideration and support at the polls. I have the ability to conduct the affairs of the county court properly, and if, with your help and support, I am elected, will use that ability to justify your faith in me.

Yours truly,
William F. Owen.

The farmer who jumps into his wet ground in the spring just to get ahead of his neighbor, cannot form a good seed bed; his soil will pack before it can be pulverized and leveled, and his land will be irreparably damaged by such management.

Great Opportunity.

An 80 acre farm, located just east of Bancroft, with good house and other buildings worth $3,500 alone, for sale at a bargain. There are 65 acres under cultivation and the balance is in woodland. Good school near by. This together with two horses, five cows, two heifers, one brood sow and four shoats, farm machinery and tools, oats, grain, straw, feed, etc., for $6,300. Will accept $3,300 and take mortgage for the balance. Enquire at this office. tf

If every farmer in the land would just spunk right up and declare that he was going to raise practically his living in the fields and among the garden truck, the cost of living would be greatly reduced on the farm, anyway. Nor would we have so many tantalizing little debts hanging to us.

Do you know that more real danger lurks in a common cold than in any other of the minor ailments? The safe way is to take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a thoroughly reliable preparation, and rid yourself of the cold as quickly as possible. This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

The variable drop planter is all right, particularly for the field where the soil varies. The change of drop can be made without stopping the team, so more seed can be used on rich bottom land and less over on the knolls, where the soil is poorer. One has to keep his thinker working, though, to make the changes as the soil requires.

"Rents average a trifle higher each year, and in many cases it is because of the renters themselves bidding against each other for the more desirable farms. A system of share renting would be better for both landlord and tenant, according to my way of thinking, and I have had experience in the past, both as landlord and tenant."

Proposals For Bids.

Bids will be received by the undersigned up to noon of March 1, 1913, for building an addition to the High school and for a new six room building in the Second ward Stevens Point, Wis., according to plans and specifications prepared by Alban & Hausler, architects, of St. Paul, Minn. Bids will also be received for the heating, ventilating, plumbing and electrical work in both buildings, according to the plans and specifications on file. Plans and specifications may be secured from Alban & Hausler, St Paul, Minn., or the undersigned. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

Endorsement of Davies.

Milwaukee Journal: The action of the state senate of Wisconsin in unanimously adopting resolutions asking President-elect Wilson to consider Joseph E. Davies in connection with his choice of a cabinet is decidedly noteworthy.

In the first place, the senate is composed almost wholly of republicans, so that its cordial endorsement of Mr. Davies, who is democratic national committeeman for the state, is unique and even remarkable. The endorsement is significant, moreover, because it shows that even political leaders in Wisconsin, who are seriously in conflict on many points, can occasionally "get together." The most important meaning of the action, however, is that the progressive republicans and progressive democrats of the state are feeling more and more the strength of common ties. They differ in name rather than in principle. They constitute a large majority of the senate and they would undoubtedly have passed the resolutions endorsing Mr. Davies no matter how strenuous might have been the opposition in other quarters. It is quite safe to say that the warmest supporters of the resolution represent the votes which regardless of party ties, gave Wisconsin's electoral vote to Woodrow Wilson.

About Western Hemlock.

Western helmock, says the department of agriculture, deserves a better opinion and more general use than it now obtains. Intrinsically it is among the most important of western woods.

The wood of western hemlock has generally been considered an inferior one, chiefly because of the prejudice created by the name, which has caused it to be identified with eastern hemlock. Tests by the forest service, however, show it to have 88 per cent. the strength of Douglas fir, one of the country's chief construction timbers. In fact it is often mixed with Douglas fir and used for the same purposes.

The wood is practically free from pitch, has a handsome grain, takes paint and stain well, and works smoothly. It is suitable for sash and door stock, furniture, interior finish, framing, flooring, boxes, barrels and pulp. In bridges and trestles it can be used for all the heaviest construction. When properly treated with preservatives, it is a valuable cross tie and pole wood.

According to Forest Service Bulletin No. 115, the best stands of western hemlock are found in the coast region and through the Cascade mountains. The bulletin further gives the results of tests by which the mechanical properties of western hemlock have been determined, and tells of the different uses to which the wood is adapted.

When the time limitation for new business expired in the assembly on Tuesday night of last week, 425 bills had crossed the clerk's desk, and over 150 were presented that day in the senate. The members were slow in getting in their bills at first, but when it came to getting them under the wire at the last moment they showed great activity, and as a result there are more bills before this legislature at the present time than were ever offered any previous Wisconsin legislature. The total number of bills presented in the assembly was 1,066, against 1,077 two years ago, which included the bills which came in from the committee on rules after the conclusion of the limitation for new business and of which there were fully 200. In the senate 398 bills have been introduced against 384 altogether two years ago, including those introduced by the committee on rules. This makes a total of 1,464 bills before this legislature.

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Why the Little Red Schoolhouse Fails. A frank but helpful criticism of rural schools, written by Ware J. Hibbard after years of personal experience as a country school-teacher. He shows exactly what is wrong with rural schools and how that wrong can be remedied.

The Man Who Made Good. He's J. E. Fitzgerald, and the big secret of his success is: "It doesn't pay to raise things to suit your fancy altogether; raise things to suit the buyer's fancy." If you are a market gardener or in any way interested in this end of agriculture, Mr. Fitzgerald's article will help you to make more money.

An Ex-Slave's Miracle Crops. The United States Department of Agriculture has just issued a Bulletin telling of the marvelously large crops raised by an ex-slave on a two-acre farm. But Bulletins, like coins, have two sides; this article, by Barton W. Currie, shows the "other side" of this remarkable Bulletin.

Simple Accounts For Farm Business. "For want of a nail * * * * the kingdom was lost and for want of a sound system of keeping accounts many a once valuable farm has been lost. To help you avoid just such a pitfall, Morton O. Cooper, an expert farm accountant, has worked out a simple but practical system for keeping farm accounts.

Breeders Who Make New Breeds. Years of effort on the part of enterprising and progressive farmers and scientists in developing new and better breeds in plant and animal life were announced at the annual convention of the American Breeders' Association, held recently at Columbia, S. C., and this week's issue contains an article telling just what these breeders have accomplished and how their achievements will benefit farmers and stockmen.

Correcting Concrete Silo Troubles. An important article showing why concrete should be used in building such permanent structures. Common dangers that should be avoided are also pointed out.

Mushrooms at Home. The market for mushrooms is always good, but the supply of mushrooms is never up to the demand. This article, by S. L. de Fabry, an expert mushroom grower, shows just how to grow and market mushrooms.

Dairying On Rough Land. If you have a rough, broken portion of land that seemingly is useless, you had better read what Charles S. Phelps says about using just such land for pasturing dairy cows.

The Farm That Won't Wear Out Dr. Cyril G. Hopkins' (of the Illinois Experiment Station) final summing up of his series of articles on the "how" of maintaining permanent, successful agriculture. You will get the whole gist of this important series in this one article.

Odd Jobs for the Automobile. A fifteen-minute article by Charles E. T. Scharps that shows how an automobile can be used on the farm to saw wood, thresh grain, churn butter and cut feed.

Concrete Corncribs. In one section of the country progressive farmers are building concrete corncribs. Why they have adopted this new form of construction and how the work is done is explained by William Walter Smith.

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR WOMEN

The Country Gentlewoman this week talks to the woman who is a victim of the "nagging" habit. It is critical, but helpful.

Grandmother's Recipes are a number of good old-fashioned recipes that today are among the "lost arts" of the kitchen.

The Country Woman's Clothes page gives a number of designs for waists that are attractive and yet practical and serviceable.

Keep Your Heirlooms, for old as they are, they are better than much of the present-day furniture, etc. Moreover, as Frederick Hewitt points out, they're worth money. The antique dealer knows the value of your old furniture and so should you.

FOR POULTRY FOLKS ONLY

A Real Cure for Roup that cured 98 per cent. is explained by F. S. Jacoby. This new treatment has been worked out by the Ohio State University.

Hen Brooding, by W. A. Sherman, discusses the advantages of natural brooding over the manufactured brooder—a subject that is especially interesting and timely at this season of the year.

Types of Wooden Hen is a timely article on the best style of brooder and the best way to use it. The author is A. G. Phillips, a noted poultry authority.

The Congressional Calendar. This week THE OBSERVER discusses among a number of other things the new Democratic Committee on Public Lands of the House of Representatives, and the attitude of its members toward conservation.

The Crops and the Market. A weekly department written by one of the foremost financial authorities of the country, giving an agricultural-financial forecast that will be of the utmost value to every farmer, and business man having dealings with farmers.

Everyman's Garden. To the farmer who has a small vegetable patch for "family use"—to the suburbanite, too—the question of good soil and how to take care of it is vital. This week EVERYMAN'S GARDEN takes up this important question of garden soils.

The R. F. D. Letter Box. No matter what you want to know about agriculture, stock raising or poultry, write to us. An expert (who knows what is practical) will answer you—which is better business than learning by stumbling.

In several cities household leagues have been formed for the purpose of reducing the cost of living. Many think this is tackling the proposition from the wrong end, since they believe it would be better to work for an increase in wages and let the cost of living remain as it is, as high prices for products of the soil mean prosperity all around. It is a fact that when the farmer is prosperous everyone else is.

Charcoal is a pressing essential for poultry, especially at this season. Instead of buying it, rake up some old chunks of wood, cobs and other refuse about the place, setting fire to them. When the heap turns to a mass of hot coals, smother it down with a little water or dirt, and when it cools you will have a handy supply of charcoal and be rid of the rubbish.

Milady's Mirror

How to Get Thin.

"I have often thought," says Mme. Jeanne la Place in a recent number of Woman's World, "that the world is divided into but two classes of people—those that want to get fat and those that want to get thin. Honest, did you ever meet a person who seemed perfectly satisfied with his weight?

"Of the overfat and overthin women, perhaps the overfat are the more to be pitied. At least they seem to think they are. It is always possible for the thin person to pad herself out to appear plumper, but it is extremely difficult for the fleshy person to disguise her infirmity. A good corset, a preference for dark and quiet colors in dress and a strict avoidance of horizontal stripes will do much to improve the appearance of her figure, but even these are of little avail if she once crosses the line between plumpness and fleshiness.

"Like other beauty ills, tendency to superfluous flesh must be taken in time. So many women will go on placidly and steadily gaining in flesh from month to month and from year to year until some day they wake up to the terrible realization that they are fat. Then a frightful wail goes up, and the victim begins to scramble around wildly for something to 'reduce flesh' and to answer 'anti-fat' advertisements and write pathetic letters to beauty editors.

"While it is possible for a really fat person to reduce her weight, it can usually only be done by immense self denial and excessive and often painful exertion, whereas a very moderate amount of self denial and exertion begun in time might have kept her from ever becoming an unsightly mass of flesh.

"In the vast majority of cases—in every case, I believe, in which fat is not due to actual disease—excessive flesh is caused by too much food and too little exercise. This may seem harsh doctrine to the fleshy sister, but if she wishes to improve her condition she might as well begin by looking facts in the face.

"Therefore the woman that finds that she is putting on flesh at an alarming rate should start out to regulate her diet. She is almost sure to find that she is eating more than she needs, taking into consideration the amount of physical labor she performs. Brain workers need less food than manual laborers, and people whose occupations keep them indoors should not eat as much as people who are in the open air most of the time.

"So the fleshy woman will either have to cut down her diet or take increased exercise, or, more likely, because it may cost some effort to get back to a normal condition she will have to do both at least for a time.

"The woman that wants to lose flesh should never eat more than once a day and then should confine herself to lean meats, fish and poultry. She should avoid starchy foods and go very lightly on potatoes, bread and sweets. The bulk of her diet should consist of fruit and green vegetables. This may sound like Lenten fare, but I am talking now to the woman who is determined not to be fat.

"Then, again, the fleshy woman should not sleep more than seven hours out of the twenty-four. She should never lie in bed late in the morning nor indulge in the rocking chair habit. On the other hand, she should get all the physical exercise she can possibly manage, preferably in the open air. The best all around general exercise and one within the reach of all is walking. Most women, whether they be fat or thin, walk far too little. The woman who tends to be fleshy should walk for at least an hour every day and do it regularly and systematically. As she gets accustomed to the exercise she should increase the number of miles she walks a day until she is doing five miles."

Treatment of Finger Nails.

To keep the finger nails clean the nailbrush and soap and warm water should be used daily, and every time the hands are washed and while they are still soft and warm the free edge of the scarf skin, which, if not attended to, is apt to grow upward over the nails, should be gently loosened and pressed back in a neatly rounded form, by which the occurrence of cracks, hangnails, etc., about the roots of the nails will be prevented, and a graceful oval form and the display of a crescent-like space of white will be insured. This scarf skin, as a rule, should never be cut and should on no account be torn or picked off, as is commonly done. The less it is meddled with, other than in the way recommended, the better.

Your False Hair or Switch.

If it has lost its luster and looks dry and dull wash it just as you would your own hair, rinsing well and afterward hanging it up so that it dries thoroughly.

After it is quite dry put a little vaseline on the palms of your hands and rub this into the switch, rubbing with a downward motion, so that the vaseline gets into the hair well. Do not, however, have the hands too greasy. When you have rubbed the vaseline in take a good brush and use it vigorously with even, steady strokes.

You will find this will make the hair glossy and bright again.

A Valuable Suggestion

Important to Everyone

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys would receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, brick dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, maybe weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention The Gazette, Stevens Point, Wis.

Some Facts About Pumpelly, Yale Football Star.

Here are few facts about Harold Pumpelly, Yale halfback, who saved his team from defeat against Princeton recently by kicking a goal from the field in the last few minutes of play: He is a New York state boy hailing from Oswego, is twenty-two years old, five feet ten inches and weighs 183 pounds. He prepared for the New Haven university at Hotchkiss school. Last year he played brilliantly on the freshman team. His kicking of field goals won many hard fought games for the "freshies." Next season he is sure of a place as halfback on the Yale eleven.

Burns May Be Made a Regular.

In all probability Burns will be a regular in the Giant outfield next season. He loomed up strongly in the games he was in this year, and it was a matter of speculation why he was not used oftener. George is not twenty-two years old. He has been picking up rapidly, and another course of spring training should about fit him for a regular berth in the Giant outfield.

This was Burns' first season in fast company. Following his usual policy, McGraw gave the Utica boy plenty of time to absorb baseball knowledge. Every youngster, no matter how talented, is in need of polish which only can be attained by actual experience. This is the reason why the "Little Napoleon" puts all his rookies through a bench course in preparation for the big show, and the fans know how well it has worked.

Callahan Has Real Slugger For First.

Jimmy Callahan of the Chicago White Sox seems to have picked up a prize in Borton, the young first baseman who finished the season with Chicago last fall. Borton not only handled himself well around the bag, but he was fourth among the league hitters, having an average of .371 in thirty-one games.

This record may be but a flash in the pan, though good judges of ball players see in Borton a coming star. Borton is scarcely twenty-one, well built and fast on his feet. He appears to be by far the best youngster Chicago has picked up in some years.

Change Penn Coaching System.

Dissatisfied with the coaching methods in vogue at the University of Pennsylvania, a number of wealthy graduates have banded together to raise a large amount of money with which to engage George Brooke to take charge of the Red and Blue football team next year.

Brooke is at present coaching the Swarthmore eleven, which was one of the three minor colleges coached by Penn graduates to take the measure of Penn this season. The offer will be put up to the advisory council for action.

French Bantam Built Like Langford.

Charles Ledoux, the French bantam who recently came over to America, can fight just as well with his left or his right leg extended. During a fight he occasionally adopts the K. O. Brown attitude.

He is called the "Little Sam Langford." He is short and has a tremendous torso, with small legs.

His reach is six inches longer than his height, which is five feet one inch. He is a freak in this respect, as an ordinary man's reach is the same as his height.

Germans Rush Olympic Stadium.

Work will be pushed on the new Olympic stadium at Berlin, where the Olympic games will be held in 1916. It will probably be finished in time to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the kaiser's accession, which will occur next year.

The stadium is to lie in the middle of the large Grunewald race course on the west side of Berlin. It will be about half an hour's ride by train from the center of the city.

Frenchmen Want Yankee Trainer.

American coaches will be asked to help prepare the French athletes for the next Olympic games. This is the outcome of the poor performance of French athletes at Stockholm and the brilliant showing made there by the Americans. France has taken the lesson of the games to heart and is forming an organization already to get ready a representative and properly trained team for the Berlin games.
